

CONTESTED NOTIONS OF PRIVACY IN 1960s AND 1970s U.S. CULTURE

TALK BY BENEDIKT NEUROTH
(Humboldt University, Berlin)

Wednesday, November 27, 2019, at 10 a.m.

Schellingstraße 3

Room S007

Privacy represents a crucial notion in US political culture during the 1960s and 1970s. Rather than understanding the notion as a separate sphere of seclusion, the presentation elaborates on how governmental practices have shaped privacy debates. This talk is presented by the Collaborative Research Center "Cultures of Vigilance" and funded by the German Research Foundation.
